The installation of MapInfo Professional requires that a serial number be entered during installation. The serial number is used in versions 10 through 13. In versions 10 through 13, MapInfo uses a simple string to describe the version. This serial number is called the variable serial number. After it is used once, it is still available in the registry for future use. As with other software programs, the registry is a sequence of bytes in the computer, or hard drive. The variable serial number enables the new user to set up the program as the same as the installation record. Check out our recommendations for this collection, hand-picked by our editors!
